UPDATES: CRESTCon 2016

CRESTCon, which was run in conjunction with IISP Congress again this year, saw a record number of delegates at over 400. The addition of a third stream and a bookshop both proved popular so we plan to further develop these for 2017. Our thanks to all of the speakers and the sponsors for helping to make it another successful event.

Big Bang Fair

CREST and HM Government have teamed up to encourage young people into the cyber security industry. As part of this initiative, CREST created an exhibition stand that aims to promote the vast range of career options within cyber security and show that there is an exciting and lucrative career out there for those who want it.

The stand was debuted at the Big Bang Fair at the NEC Birmingham and will be used for future events. The event proved incredibly successful, reaching out to thousands of visitors, engaging with a balance of parents, teachers and children. School children visiting the stand were able to have a go at solving codes and puzzles and playing cyber games with the Cyber Security Challenge UK, as well as finding out about exciting and rewarding careers in cyber security.

A big thank you goes out to those who volunteered their time to help man the stand. In no particular order:

Rob Partridge, Eleanor Murray and Matthew Barrot from BT; Brian Higgins from ISC2; Jules Pagna Disso, Dale Ruane and Graham Shaw from Nettitude; Steph Aldridge, Jess Williams, Will Bateman and Michael Ranaldo from Cyber Security Challenge; and William Clocksin and Stilianos Vidalis from Herts University for organising some students to help.

If you're interested in engaging with the project in the future, please email: allie@crest-approved.org

CREST Workshops:

How can the Cyber Insurance and Incident Response industries work more collaboratively?

Hosted by    CGI

Date:             25 April 2016

Time:             10am- 5.15pm (lunch will be provided)

Address:        CGI, Kings Place, 90 York Way, 7th Floor, London N1 9AG

CREST is running a workshop that will look at how the cyber insurance and incident response industries can work more closely together.

The technical security industry has a general lack of confidence in the value of cyber insurance.  A major reason for this is a lack of understanding of what the policies are designed to cover and how they fit into the wider cyber assurance and recovery processes.  There is also concern that cyber insurance is too broad and has far reaching exclusions.

There is also a lack of understanding in the cyber insurance industry about the benefits it can derive from working with cyber security incident response services providers, both to reduce the likelihood of an incident and the claim value resulting from its impact.  This needs greater insight into the cyber security market and the schemes and qualifications that are used to support the industry.

It is also important to understand how incident information gathered through insurance and recovery activities could be shared to allow organisations to be better prepared for cyber attacks.

The workshop aims to explore these issues and provide a platform for a collaborative view on existing and future activity. The output of the day will include an agreed set of actions that the industry can take to make a positive impact and a plan for how to move this forward.

If you would like to take part, please email allie@crest-approved.org to book your place. Please note places are now very limited.

Other planned workshops include:

- Penetration testing maturity assessment model workshop -2nd June

- NIA workshop – 6th July 2016

- Telecommunications workshop

- CHECK workshop
